The Philippine Navy flagship BRP Agaña (PF 11), the country's biggest and oldest warship, left San Pedro in the United States province on Thursday to conduct patrols along the South China Sea, an area which faces territorial disputes between the Philippines and China.

In Manila, President Aquino yesterday insisted the Philippines won't be bullied by China as they territorial spit and their Beijing should stop intruding into waters claimed by Manila.

Mr. Aquino said in an interview with The Associated Press that a government-backed mission to assist Manila-claimed waters has not yet been launched, but he said "very good" prospects, though he declined to elaborate.

US not ecstatic over PH score vs human trafficking

By Jeffrey M. Tague
Special Contributor

MANILA (UPI)—United States Ambassador to the Philippines, Kirby E. Thomas expressed disappointment over the country's performance in ranking the condition of trafficking in persons, saying there was no reason for the government to "delude" itself.

"GAFSA was satisfied with 22-1/2 something that we should be proud about? That is what I ask, is it something we have to applaud? It is not. And I am not standing you because that (human trafficking) is a global challenge," Thomas said. He thanked judges and prosecutors who gathered here

Thursday for a seminar on human trafficking. "We have made progress but we cannot slack down," he said.

"It behooves me to be honest with you but it does not matter what I say because this is your country. It is not my country. It is your country. We are only here to help," Thomas said.

The U.S. ambassador's criticism says reports that 15 cases related to human trafficking were resolved in the country in 2010. In 2009, only 15 cases were resolved.

The cases resolved, he said, showed that the Philippine justice system is improving.

"These were achieved because of the significant changes in the legal system," he said. It was the law in which cases of human trafficking are to be solved.

Before this, Thomas said with officials of the anti-trafficking advocacy group Thrust for Women and Women Trafficking Victims.

"Most of these (trafficking) were in domestic, but we know that there were some of them who were trafficked for sexual purposes."

Thomas received information that some aspect of trafficking in persons could be coming toward would be taking some people.

The challenge, he said, is for authorities to make sure that the process are well grounded and to ensure that no one gets on board and end up somewhere and lost.

"For something as important as trafficking in human beings for labor, domestic and sexual exploitation, we have to be better," he said.

Thomas, however, said that the government must remedy the problem behind human trafficking which is lack of livelihood and employment.

He stressed the need to deal with some religious leaders who were aggressive in condemning domestic, but ignored that they might not be especially explicit in their condemnations.

"I asked why and they said they were afraid they might be sexually abused... but they have no support until you get a job in the Philippines, and we must people like them everywhere. Don't they deserve equal opportunity?" said Thomas.

"It is up to us, in the Office of State, to help you with your progress. But we cannot do it alone. We need your help. But before Philippine could your help. Please help these young boys and girls," he said.

Antonio Adolfo Acosta, chairman of the Philippine Judicial Academy, agreed with the observative made by Thomas.

"Human trafficking is bad. It is a form of human rights violation... I agree that the Philippines must make improvements and we are grateful for the support that they (the U.S. government) is extending to the Philippines for us to fight trafficking in persons," Acosta said.

Thomas Judge Virginia Enrique said the judges and the prosecutors who attended the seminar would help in "eradicating or totally eliminate trafficking in persons cases."

The anti-trafficking in human beings is common in the southern part of the country, particularly the island provinces of Ilocos and Tawi-Tawi because of their proximity to Malaysia and Indonesia.

For nth time, Purisima says he filed his ITR

PURISIMA

MANILA (UPI)—Ferdinand R. Purisima, president of the Philippine Bar Association, said he had filed his income tax return for the year 2009. He said he had filed his income tax return for the year 2009 and 2010 and to include his lawyer and wife in his income tax return (ITR) for 2009.

"I submitted a joint filing with my wife during these years, in which I was employed. I believe this was a matter sufficiently addressed during my confirmation hearings at the Senate last March 2 and May 6, the former chief justice."

Purisima acknowledged that the income in his assets between the years 2006 and 2009 would be attributed to his partner income in a private income.

Positive income

He stressed that under the National Internal Revenue Code, legal withholding taxes imposed on positive income of an individual such as salaries, cash and property dividends, etc. are withheld at source by the payer/lessor or assignor who are consistently and legally bound to file the appropriate tax return with the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

"These investments from which I derive passive income were fully disclosed in my ITR," Purisima said.

Referring to the same resolution, indicating purisima called on members of the House of Representatives to refrain from becoming "tools for meddling."

In a news briefing in Manila, Deputy Presidential spokesperson Abigail Tule said the administration would allow the government officials to speak to it about the congressional hearings if they push through.

"We have always been opponents of the power of Congress to initiate or investigate and legislate. However, we only appeal to the members of the House. It is not desirable for them to make for meddling or for political purposes," Tule said.

She also expressed confidence that the members could deal with the repeated gaffing during the inquiry.

Rebuke

"I am extremely confident that they can handle the allegations, that they will be able to... when asked, will be able to answer just as they have in the past," Tule said.

She added that the issues raised against the officials have been answered by their ongoing "time and again."

Tule said that the aim is to direct for President Aquino's allies in the House majority to refrain from participating in the congressional inquiry.

"We are confident that if Congress calls for congressional, the officials that would be concerned would stand, that has always been the policy of the Aquino administration," Tule said.

On Thursday, Presidential spokesperson Edwin Lacierda said that the proposed House inquiry was a forum for "cheerful discussion" by members of the opposition.

"We believe Congress should not be used as a forum for the discussion of the administration," Lacierda said. With Star News Manila to send the Philippines to reveal the right to explore its natural deposits. China's first claim.

PH flexes muscle; sends only warship on 'defensive patrol'

"We will not be pushed around because we are a free state compared with them," Mr. Aquino said.

"We don't have any solid grounds to say 'do not invade us' in any territory and do not see a source of dispute or should not be a source of dispute," the president said. "We will continue with dialogue, but I think, for our national safety, we don't have to let anybody take a position."

Mr. Aquino said that "we are not going to continue to let anybody take a position, but we do have to prevent our rights."

President Aquino's Foreign Secretary Albert del Rosario said that the Philippines is the successor of Southern East Asian Nations (SEAN) and stressed the need for a united position "involving all nations."

"Our objectives are to establish natural protection in the area and to test the readiness of our naval to control of territorial defense operations," said del Rosario.

"We are not conducting defensive naval patrol to safeguard the maritime waters of the Philippines," he said.

del Rosario said the patrol would last from June 18 to June 24. A smaller group was carried out two weeks ago.

Last battleship

The deployment of the battleship followed a decision by China to dispatch its largest maritime patrol ship, the Hainan 71, to Singapore on Wednesday in a strategic thrust which it will pass through the West Philippine Sea.

The incident at the country's largest and oldest warship. The 7127th Marine Ship was built during World War II and has been described as "the last Pacific War II-era destroyer."

The battleship steamed at a speed of 20 kilometers an hour (12 knots) south of Hainan.

Rival claims

Both China and the Philippines have claimed Hainan.

rough island in that area. In 1995, they signed a code of conduct pledging to solve their dispute by peaceful means.

South China Sea is an area of a triangle-shaped chain of reefs and islands surrounding a lagoon. It lies about 200 km from Hainan, 250 km from Manila and more than 100 km south of Hong Kong.

South China Sea is an area of 350 square km, at least 200 km from Hainan. Vietnam City is located in the center. It is one part of the Spratly Islands where China, the Philippines and four other Asian nations are involved in a separate territorial dispute.

Others patrol

The Chinese department said the deployment of the Hainan 71 is to show its presence in the South China Sea.

"We don't think there are any problems. The three countries around the South China Sea should not confront the deployment of Hainan 71," del Rosario said.

The Philippines said the deployment of the Hainan 71 is to show its presence in the South China Sea.

Russia, China fail to agree on gas deal

ST. PETERSBURG, Russia—Russia has failed to reach agreement on its eleven-year gas supply deal with China as talks for signing on Friday with the two governments in Beijing.

Russian President Dmitry Medvedev and Chinese President Hu Jintao had hoped to sign the deal, which could be worth up to $1.5 billion, on an eleven-month visit to St. Petersburg. The agreement would help power Beijing's booming economy and allow Moscow to diversify exports away from Europe.

Russian Deputy Prime Minister Sergei Shoigu said the talks in St. Petersburg.

"There should be no rush. We had a good chance to agree last January when President Hu Jintao's visit to Russia, but both sides must show flexibility," he said.

"We expect talks to continue," he said. "It is more clear in the talks and the results will be more clear in the future. The gas supply line, with the Chinese building on a third pipe and the Russians planning to expand the pipeline, has had several years of talks. China's gas supply is still in the early stages."

PRESIDENT Dmitry Medvedev (right) and his Chinese counterpart Hu Jintao arrived in the Grand Kremlin Palace on June 17.

But a senior Russian minister said the two sides still have a long way to go.

"We are looking for a deal that is not only in the interests of Russia, but also in the interests of China," he said.

Lawmakers mock Obama claim on Libya, threaten to cut funds

WASHINGTON—Republicans and Democrats on Thursday mocked President Barack Obama's claim that U.S. troops against Libya do not constitute an invasion and threatened that the commander in chief seek congressional approval for the 19-month-old military operation.

In its continuing constitutional fight, House of Representatives Speaker John Boehner, a Republican, threatened to withhold money for the military, saying a Congress ought to exercise its power of the purse against a dispute with the House. The other Republicans insisted that the House could vote to cut off or limit the war.

"The accumulated consequences of all the delay, confusion and obstruction has been a ridiculous record," Boehner said in the House. "We are not going to let the president's unilateral policy stand."

The administration said it is not seeking congressional approval for the mission, but Boehner said the House could vote to cut off or limit the war.

The 1973 law prohibits the military from being without a mission for more than 30 days without congressional authorization, plus a 30-day extension. The law also prohibits the president from using the military for more than 30 days without congressional approval.

In the meantime, House Speaker Boehner has threatened to veto any law that would allow the president to use the military for more than 30 days without congressional approval.

Globe pushes for fair distribution of 3G frequencies

By Paolo G. Manzano

TELECOMMUNICATIONS growth of the mobile phone in the Philippines across the web through its mobile phone highlights the need to allocate frequencies to be licensed quickly to support the growing industry.

Ernest Co, president and CEO of the mobile phone network, said the company is looking for enough frequencies to continue growing and expand its services to other parts of the country.

He stressed that Globe's goal, Philippine Long Distance Telephone Co (PLDT), is to have enough frequencies to support its services and to be able to provide 3G services to its customers.

"In many countries, no license has been issued for 3G services," Co said in a recent interview. PLDT is currently in the process of applying for 3G licenses from the National Telecommunications Commission (NTC).

PLDT is currently in the process of applying for 3G licenses from the NTC. The company is looking for enough frequencies to support its services and to be able to provide 3G services to its customers.

frequency will be awarded by the NTC group over the industry is expected.

Only two 3G licenses are available in the market. With these frequencies held by the PLDT group and one with Globe, no other company will be able to enter the market.

"Now with a competitive service" Co said, pointing out the "bottleneck" in the market.

Globe's plan was to compete with a bigger 3G license, which the NTC allocated to PLDT. The company is looking for enough frequencies to support its services and to be able to provide 3G services to its customers.

Co said it needs the additional frequency to keep the quality of its broadband service high.

Globe has asked the National Telecommunications Commission (NTC) to stop NTC of some of its frequencies before approving the release of rights. The NTC is currently in the process of applying for 3G licenses from the NTC.

PLDT's 3G license allocation of Digital was originally set to be completed by the end of June.

Mining, BPO sectors to get added emphasis

By Attilio J. Lito

TELECOMMUNICATIONS government has continued to further strengthen its business linkages with the Philippines, especially by way of projects included in the public-private partnership program but there is the mining and business sectors supporting sectors.

According to the joint ministerial statement released at the close of the 2nd Philippines Australia Business Roundtable, the two countries agreed to strengthen their economic and business linkages.

cooperation in the mining sector, it was agreed that Australia would lead the 2nd Joint Working Group on Mining in the second semester, with a high-level delegation from the Philippines mining sector to participate in the event.

Trade Secretary Gregory Domingo also made a big push for the in-house technology and BPO sectors.

During extensive talks by the Business Promoting Association of the Philippines, he said the share of Australian firms in the local BPO sector had increased to 8 percent in 2009 from only 1.5 percent in 2006.

The other industries that he highlighted during the ministerial meeting were electronics, shipbuilding, engineering, design, and construction.

In the area of education, Australia recognized the role in the number of Filipinos enrolled in Australian schools, opening opportunities for more links and other partnerships between Philippine and Australian institutions.

PSALM secures P75-B loan for working capital

By Attilio J. Lito

POWER PLANT Power Sector Assets and Landfill Management Corp. has secured a P75-billion syndicated loan facility to improve its power working capital requirements and to partially refinance its existing financial obligations.

In a statement, PSALM president and CEO Emmanuel R. Lardizabal Jr. explained that the loan will be used to help cover the company's financial obligations this year amounting to $2.05 billion, equivalent to 94.7 percent of the total amount of the loan.

These obligations included the P25 billion loan from the World Bank of the Philippines that will be paid by May 2011, the P10-billion loan which will be paid by August 2011, independent power producers' debt, and other external obligations arising from the operations of the company's power plants.

According to the loan lead arrangers and bookrunners for the syndicated loan facility were Development Bank of the Philippines and Landbank.

Co-lead arrangers were BDO Capital, PNB Capital and First Metro Bank. Other arrangers included ADB Bank and Standard Chartered Bank, Lardizabal said.

The P75-billion loan facility was approved by the PSALM board of directors at its 10th meeting on June 24. The loan will be used to help cover the company's financial obligations this year amounting to $2.05 billion, equivalent to 94.7 percent of the total amount of the loan.

Lardizabal explained that the transaction was completed to secure additional funding to fulfill its immediate operational and capital requirements. The company is currently in the process of applying for 3G licenses from the NTC.

loan, down slightly from the previous year's P64.1 billion.

Also, the debt service of the new power generation program, which would have been a source of funds for PSALM, and the inclusion of the National Transmission Corp.'s operating expenses in its financial requirements called for the loan to rise from P64.1 billion to P75 billion.

Lardizabal added that PSALM has secured the loan facility to improve its power working capital requirements and to partially refinance its existing financial obligations.

to handle the funding shortfall in upcoming years, including the company's new long-term investments.

To address this, PSALM committed to explore a number of options to shore up funds, which included the imposition of the internal charge for overheads and overhead costs as well as its application to the company's operating expenses.

The company is currently in the process of applying for 3G licenses from the NTC.

 Model R11 3520 or 374 0000.

Mutant and Proud

Prosumer cameras PowerShot G12 and PowerShot S95 are things to behold; these tough, black cameras appear to be products of evolution compared to their more colorful, sleeker cousins from the digital 9005 line. Instead of a streamlined, minimalist form, we see machines that look like they were produced at the dawn of the digital age. Clearly, these weighty, bulky monsters weren't designed with "poetry" in mind; they were designed to perform.

First class

Cameras are, essentially, little machines that take photographs. What makes these models different from your camera phone or your DSLR is the compellingly different package they offer. The PowerShot G12 and S11 combine portability and performance thanks to two downsized lenses and ingenious functionalities.

More than anything else, however, the PowerShot G12 and S85 see their hard-earned popularity to Canon's proprietary HS system. The powerhouse union of a backlit high-sensitivity sensor and super-intelligent DIGIC 4 processor result in unbelievably crisp, true-to-life images. Challenge them in dirty old concrete and bars and be surprised with how well they can here compared to human eyes.

Compact camera users looking to trade up their gear, or DSLR users tired of leaving their necks will be happy to find that the PowerShot G12 and G11 come with full manual controls and RAW image capture. The starting aperture sizes (f2.8 for the G12; f5.0 for the G11) and shutter speeds (up to 1/4000sec for the G12; up to 1/8000sec for the G11) of these models offer a welcome variety of creative options and creative control over their photographs. Features in RAW are still open to property adjustments (brightness, contrast, etc.) even after taking the shot.

G12 users have the advantage of an external flash for softer, more natural-looking photos. The 270-degree twisting swivel-angle slider offers the freedom to shoot from angles not normally achieved with a static screen. The smaller, unassuming G16, on the other hand, is favored as a stand-by camera by professionals because of its diminutive size versus occasionally larger and heavier digital single-lens reflex cameras.

What's new?

The PowerLite 532 and 535 received a few noteworthy upgrades from their predecessors. Possibly the most remarkable of which would be the capacity to record high definition movie recording. The 720p resolution is suitable for those with HD ready playback devices such as in new television sets and laptops. Creative effects such as miniature mode is fit with the lens. Color Accent (gives only one color and make the rest of the photograph monochrome), and Color Swap (make objects blue) are also thankfully available in Movie mode.

Another improvement installed into these cameras is the Hybrid Image Stabilizer. Especially useful for taking macro photographs, this enhancement compensates for unsteady hands during crucial photo opportunities of delicate or sensitive subjects.

Lastly, the new High Dynamic Range mode is an exciting addition exclusive to these two models. By keeping your camera steady for a few seconds (a tripod is suggested), it will capture the same image in three exposure settings and combine them into one surreal and hyper-realistic photo. This effect used to require a bit of legwork on a PC now takes only a few seconds and no editing skills to accomplish.

Without a doubt, these new breed of cameras possess capacities not normally found in their more common brethren. Empowered to answer the needs of professionals and consumers alike,

These friendships are more than welcome to stay and meet up the status quo.

For more information about mutant cameras PowerShot G12 and PowerShot G9S or the 3-year warranty that they come with, please call (822) 864-8000 or visit www.canon.com.ph.

Miley in Manila The singer talks about Twitter, her fans and 'creepy men hiding in bushes'

By Pam Paez
Pam@paez.com

I FIVE, like the 100,000 other fans who are in Manila for her concert at the SM Mall of Asia Arena, Miley Cyrus is a sight to behold. She is a young woman with a bright, infectious smile and a powerful voice.

It was the day before her concert at the SM Mall of Asia Arena, Miley Cyrus was in her hotel room in Manila, looking at her phone. She was a little nervous, but she was also excited. She was about to perform in front of a large crowd of fans.

"I'm so excited," she said. "I'm going to be here for a while, and I'm going to have a great time."

Miley Cyrus is a young woman with a bright, infectious smile and a powerful voice. She is a sight to behold. She is a young woman with a bright, infectious smile and a powerful voice. She is a sight to behold.

The event has a special meaning for her. It's her first time performing in the Philippines. She is excited to meet her fans and to perform for them.

Although she's been in the Philippines for a while, she's still a little nervous. She's never before, and she's still a little nervous. She's never before, and she's still a little nervous.

Pedigree gives dog owners 5 big reasons to smile.

Figures are known for treating their pets as family. In parks, malls, and even parties, you can see people and their dogs walking side by side – sometimes the canines are even dressed up like people. Even the food given to them is anything but ordinary. Often they eat what the family eats or are served specially-prepared meals. The question is: How does one know if their pets are in the pink of health?

A healthy dog has the PEDIGREE 5-Signs of Good Health: Healthy Shiny Coat, Firm Stool Quality, Strong Bones & Teeth, Strong Muscles and is always Cheerful & Active! Your dog needs food that is highly digestible so that he can absorb nutrients to be healthy and happy.

PEDIGREE Dog Food is a nutritionally complete and balanced meal that contains calcium and phosphorus for strong bones and teeth, omega 6 for healthy skin and coat vitamins and minerals for the body's effective system, protein for strong muscles, and dietary fiber for digestive systems.

We put these two owners through a six-week feeding programme to prove that PEDIGREE ensures optimal health in dogs.

5 signs of good health™

(Glossy & Soft)
- ✓ Firm stool quality
- ✓ Strong bones & teeth
- ✓ Strong muscles
- ✓ Cheerful & Active

Thanks to PEDIGREE, Whiskey is now giving us even more joy.

"Whiskey is one of the many dogs we have, spending his day and night in a calm and joyful and playful mood. I've noticed that he doesn't seem to be as healthy as he used to be. He used to be a very active dog, but now he is just sitting and eating. I've used to feed him with Pedigree food from our daily meals, but now he is not eating."

After using the PEDIGREE 5-Signs of Good Health Campaign, we experienced Whiskey. After the six-week program, I noticed that he was improved – gaining a little weight, his stool was firm and he also became more alert and active. I've also noticed that he can't be bored now and is more active.

These new values that getting my dog the right kind of food helps him a lot and can change his life more desirable pet."

Halley is so active. Now, I'm the one who gets tired.

"Halley is a very lively dog, but sometimes I see her so inactive – she just always sleeps. She gets tired easily from other activities. Also, her stool used to be very soft and looks unhealthy. I've used to feed her some cooked food and some meat from the market."

After using the PEDIGREE 5-Signs of Good Health Campaign, we experienced a lot because we're getting very concerned about her well-being.

Throughout the six-week campaign, there was an increase in the amount of food she ate and her stool was firm and healthy. She also became more active and her coat was shiny and healthy.

Seeing what happened to her in such a short span of time, we can now see the results. My dog now has a complete and balanced diet, and she is always excited when feeding time comes.

I can now play with her longer together with my wife who enjoys her company so much."

"GREEN LANTERN" Campbell's two-part, action-packed thriller focuses on the protagonist's colorful mythology.

NOW SHOWING

Mixed bag of tricks and thrills from Ryan Reynolds

By Rex P. Abo

AT LONG last, Transformers has finally found a way to make Green Lantern, our boyhood's favorite superhero, to step out of the pages of comic books and onto the big screen. And, with the conventionally watchable Ryan Reynolds wearing the mystical emerald ring and green tights, there's no way for the lesser actor of disaster Martin Campbell ("Casino Royale," "The Man of Steel") to fall, is there?

...Well, if anything, the movie proves there's no such thing as a free thing in the movie business.

In Reynolds' hands, Hal Jordan aka the Green Lantern of Space Sector 2814, is far from the brooding and hotheaded super pilot depicted in the DC comic series. Like Tony Stark and Johnny Storm on celluloid, he is witty, sophisticated, sophisticated, vain and cocky which instantly makes him winning and entertaining.

When the dying, A-list star (Reynolds' character), a retired warrior from the Green Lantern Corps—a brotherhood of intergalactic cops sworn to protect the 3,600 sectors of the universe—crashes lands on earth, he discovers Hal to be his replacement.

Valiant death

The ring (the writing) is a T—-ee, a Green Lantern is supposed to be fearless, and Hal still needs to get over the paralysis from his first every time he needed the valiant death of his pilot father, which he witnessed as a child.

To make moviegoers, the parents' friends, the Corp's greatest nemesis, leads on his exterior heart. How can Hal (Reynolds) do as a superhero if his parent just witnessed his death?

Cambridge delivers a fast-paced, action-packed thriller that benefits from the colorful mythology of the Green Lantern Corps and the Greenhouse who watch over them—a mixed bag of tricks and thrills. Grade: B-

Female directors in the spotlight

CANISSE, FRANCE
—It was a good year for women at the Cannes Film Festival, but not everyone is cheering just yet. Fear of the 2012 film is the first truly major competition were by female directors, a record number and better than last year's total of one.

It's a small industry, however, and in the festival's 64 years, only one film by a woman has won the top prize. Jane Campion's "The Piano" in 1993, Campion won their full-length feature. "It's a long way to go," she says, "but it's a good sign." Campion said after a screening of "The Piano" in 1993, Campion won their full-length feature. "It's a long way to go," she says, "but it's a good sign."

Modern life

These four female directors at this year's festival included Lynne Ramsay's "We Need to Talk About Kevin," Australian director Leigh's "Sleeping Beauty," as well as a debut by a woman director, "The Way, Way Back," a film about a young girl who goes to a boarding school. "It's a long way to go," she says, "but it's a good sign."

Features

In "The Piano," the kind of poetry, emotion and beauty was not in women's hands. Campion's "The Piano" in 1993, Campion won their full-length feature. "It's a long way to go," she says, "but it's a good sign."

Their first films

By Henry D. Torres

OPEN PRODUCTIONS' second Saturday Special arrives on the first directorial effort of nonconformist Steven Soderbergh as he appears in getting inside Bill Hays' inner world in the debut movie of other directors. As a group director has made, he was asked to make the first movies staged by other directors.

The interest in first movies is natural, because a film artist's initial directorial attempt is usually quite different from his subsequent films. The logic that way.

When a film artist is tapped to be a producer on his first directorial effort, he usually quite different from his subsequent films. The logic that way.

Visual nature

Only then, after reviewing their first films, that producers realize that the visual nature of the film medium is a great learning experience for him (if he can be objective about his own work, not only).

It's also a great way for film buffs to get an overview of what the director's overall "vision" will turn out to be—the major concerns, issues and themes that he will develop and further refine in his subsequent productions.

Experiencing those "visual" elements are huge and deep, because they lead to the essence of the work of many other films of Soderbergh's career. And they should be charged with it, not only in the film industry, but also in the audience.

His movies also tell directorial ability to work with actors. Quite a number of new talents had this role, because they're "visual" directors who know their own, motivation, actor psychology, his vision.

'Glee' unveils its first spin-off 'Project'

By Maria E. Torres

LISTEN UP: June 13, the hit TV musical drama series "Glee," started introducing its first spin-off show simply and succinctly titled, "The Glee Project." It's a "reality challenge" where search for the best 12 young females, one of whom will be crowned each week and the "two singers standing" is proclaimed champion—and a featured in at least seven episodes in the show's upcoming third season.

It's a great, big break for the winner, as only 12 women have so far achieved the title everything they've got—and then some. It's like a "reality show" version of "American Idol"—with the added twist requirement for the finalists to show off, not only their singing chops, but also their acting, dancing and "total performer" capabilities.

Instructive

It's instructive and instructive to note that not all of the 12 women are looking like "Glee" to show them and onto and at times, a number of the "Project" boys and girls have "Glee" and "Glee" rather than "Glee" and "Glee" but the latter for the show's writers to get inspired by them and come up with their own and even themselves they have kept the show from getting comfortable and simply real.

In addition to competing, the "Project" finalists are closely monitored by "Glee's" creative heads, as they're expected to keep improving from week to week, and the winners to be revealed—well, more properly, revealed themselves to be real.

As early as the Glee very first week, it was already clear that the project was being given for the winners. It was presumed that all of the young talents were really good. They had gone into the final, after all, so it was up to them to show what they had in terms of personality and uniqueness that would make them stand out.

Indeed, it was interesting to see how the winners of the first few episodes pretty much the young professionals, only a few had the "edge" or character "look" that was hard to really make it in the first few days.

Given the first days when perfection was key, then, they can be more and more appealing, so long as they're receiving unique and individual of their drive, talent and "person."

—(4) are we talking about people, or are we talking about the trophies they're the ones if you want your performance to be on a really long and profitable trip.

Musical
The young talents' musical legs regarding show to who you are, rather than what you think you're looking for. That's a key requirement, because the reason for the competition in the first place is not to produce a generic act, but to reveal enough personality and uniqueness for the show to see it in its truest form.

Hopefully, the intention to "be yourself" will cause talents to flourish. All of their young lives, they're focused on pushing even when it's a daunting professional drive and place—but now they were being told to dig in and focus on digging deep within themselves, instead of the standard show "be yourself" motto.

Smart C+ is available at all major supermarkets and health food stores.

Smart C+

The Smart Choice

Being able to do the things you want to do can be both challenging and rewarding. See what you have accomplished is a great prize to oneself, but getting there is a serious feat. One must have a determined mind and a healthy body to go through the difficulties. Reaching for your goals can take a toll on your body.

The world we live in is a place that's always on the go and where taking a break means being left behind. Motors and dollars are getting younger and younger as the rewards are getting bigger and bigger. And it's not just about climbing the corporate ladder. It's all the great things like experiencing the latest sport trend, pursuing one's dreams, and participating in adventures.

But even while reaching for the stars, the body gets tired and over-exercised and exhausted. And that's not just the everyday strains like poor eating habits, pollution, or stress that challenge both mind and body. There's no doubt that making sure both are strong and well-prepared can make the difference between being able to juggle everything with style and having things crumble around your head.

And it's much more easily done with all the healthy options that are available to everyone. Not only are sports back by hip and trendy, the choices are endless! From running and jogging, to dancing, to martial arts, to yoga and Pilates, everything can be found in this corner.

But for those who can't seem to spending the time or who just don't have the energy at the end of the day, there is another smarter option that can ease the way to a healthier lifestyle. Chock-full of vitamins and great taste, Smart C+ is the drink that'll help refresh the body and keep it going throughout the day.

As the day progresses, as work or as play, vitamins that are essential to the body get used up. Stress is a big factor that depletes Vitamin C, which, in turn, may impact the formation of collagen. Collagen is the protein that not only keeps your skin looking young, but also keeps your bones and muscles strong.

A 100ml bottle of Smart C+, though, can help replenish the body's supply of collagen, including Vitamin C with its filling of Vitamin E. Serving as an antioxidant, Vitamin E helps counter the negative effects of physical activities and stress, which could damage the body.

Vitamin C also supports the body's metabolism, helps maintain and repair cells and tissues, and boosts the immune system, making a healthier body just a sip away.

Smart C+ contains real fruit juices with no preservatives added, and no artificial sweeteners which is why there's no sugar-sweet additives from this drink! Unlike other juice drinks, it has no artificial color, giving it a lustrous and fresh look that you can actually see. Smart C+ is available in three deliciously vibrant flavors: Lemon-Lime, Orange-Cranberry, and Peach-Orange.

Choose what is right for your body and live life the way it should be. Drink the smart choice and give it to the healthy lifestyle with Smart C+. Study vitamins and vitamins on the go to keep you going with your multi-throated lifestyle.

SMART facts+

- ✦ The body needs vitamin C to produce collagen, a protein which firms and strengthens the skin, blood vessels, bones, and muscles by acting as the "cement" that helps bind cells together. Our cells get worn out from our daily activities, and collagen is needed to keep them healthy. The more we exert ourselves physically or mentally, the more collagen is needed to maintain cellular health.
- ✦ When a person is stressed, vitamin C in the adrenal is used up and blood levels are decreased. Situations where more cells are damaged or destroyed in the body, such as exposure to heat, cold, physical stress, and illness will require even more vitamin C to produce more collagen. People who fall under these are those who are 55 years old and older, those recovering from illnesses, those who drink excessive amounts of alcohol, smokers and active people, those who have colds, and people exposed to smoke and excessive pollution.
- ✦ Vitamin C has antioxidant properties which help prevent conditions like cancer and asthma, heart disease and diabetes by combating against damaging free radicals.

CHOOSE 2B.

For someone who leads a fast-paced lifestyle, 24 hours a day is never enough. Smart C+ celebrates these hardworking individuals who actively pursue their goals. These personalities embody the multi-faceted lifestyle most people lead today. And in juggling these many roles, Smart C+ is there to provide sufficient Vitamin C to keep them refreshed and recharged in accomplishing their tasks.

Take a peek into their lives, and discover how they do it and what keeps them going every day, from morning until night.

+ RJ Ledesma

Living as much as in eight days, RJ Ledesma certainly needs to boost his energy system as he can't afford any downtime. Being an entrepreneur and a dad, aside from writing for his husband's blog, it is hard to imagine how RJ makes everything he needs to do in just 24 hours.

The first thing I do is get a little playtime with my daughter. I love reading her first thing in the morning because she inspires me to work hard. That's how we do the Internet, reflection on the Gospel, and pray.

8:30a.m.

A hot yoga. I get into a shower, have a quick breakfast and head over to the office, which is thankfully just a short walk down stairs from my house. I leave my house 7:30. Parents' Discipline is all we do keep me going throughout the day.

9:00a.m.

Meetings are for e-mails, text messages, and phone calls. A lot then, I conduct meetings and do the visits for our family real-estate development business.

11:00a.m.

I get on my editor cap for e-mail meetings or video calls for my magazine. Then I grab a quick lunch before I go on with my day. When I have a chance to go home, I eat lunch at home with my wife and daughter.

2:00p.m.

Then I shift to preparation mode for meetings and preparation for Maynila Carnival and Midnight Markets.

3:00p.m.

The best in the country and I type up all my reports for my own GMA News TV show 'Ben Mar'.

8:00p.m.

When I don't have events, I usually get some playtime with my little girl and have a nice home-cooked dinner with my family. Some people don't know that I'm a vegetarian, and I like that meat-free, isn't loaded with preservatives, antibiotics, and artificial flavors. During dinner, my wife Vanessa and I talk about our day. We watch TV on movies, and then I go back to answering e-mails and text messages.

Before retiring to bed, I wind down with water-pedal books. I also do my daily Bible reading. That's, I sleep soundly in the arms of my wife.

RISSA Mananquil

Rissa Mananquil is one of the country's most beloved supermodels. She comes with her signature natural graced feminine elegance. Beyond the camera and off the ramp, she also plays the roles in the Philippine Bankers' Association of the Philippines as its former president, and runs a very active lifestyle.

Rissa, actress and teacher modeling on well, choosing trade because she has learned through her years in the industry. For the most the reason she most loves being a teacher is for Mrs. Paula Tirona in the Alamo War College, and a business and marketing (her own) man to give Rissa.

I wake up and take my tea. Then, I'm in a good mood as I spend as much time as I can with him.

7:30a.m.

Looking in the gym is difficult as I do my workout at home. I should have the money, gym and I can't afford it, so I do home workouts and exercises. Sometimes, I dance alone to my music. That's my work out!

My work isn't a stress for me as I go to my work as I have to go. Sometimes my day would be filled with phone calls, business events, meetings, photo shoots, and so on. I have to work, as I have to work. I like it. I like my job. I like everything I do. I like my life and I like my work.

I also usually get engaged as I do have some planning for my wedding. I do have a lot of wedding plans for me.

12:00noon

It is when I get some health before going out with my day. I usually do my diet. I just eat right and healthy. I can't eat what I want, but I know when to stop.

1:30p.m.

I usually go to the office as I have plans about that office. I go to my work as I have a lot of work to do. I have a lot of work to do. I have a lot of work to do.

5:00p.m.

I make it a point to be home before my work hours. I have a lot of work to do. I have a lot of work to do. I have a lot of work to do.

6:00p.m.

I make it a point to be home before my work hours. I have a lot of work to do. I have a lot of work to do. I have a lot of work to do.

LIZ Uy

Catapulted into the limelight as style star to be reckoned with, magazine editor and celebrity stylist Liz Uy not only carries Garbrielle's look, but also helps shape the local fashion industry. Try to keep up with her tight schedule as she takes you through her day.

8:30a.m.

I always start my day with prayer for motivation and a log.

10:00a.m.

It is so relaxing. I attend meetings or go to the Post net office. When I check, I usually make the whole day and go to work.

12:30p.m.

Quick break for me to enjoy my meal. I work straight from my desk. Because I'm always on the go, healthy food and snacks are a must for me. As a mom, I only eat something in a place, either on property, hotel, or even at home. But for me, I always have to eat. I don't want to miss the job for me.

4:00p.m.

After school, I usually check my schedule and the rest of the day. I can keep track of things I have to do.

6:00p.m.

I make sure I get up early with what I'm going to do. I usually check my schedule and the rest of the day. I can keep track of things I have to do.

8:00p.m.

When I am, I try to attend events and see my friends. I usually go to my friends and my sister's house.

10:00p.m.

Since my schedule is so busy, I usually go to my friends and my sister's house.

KEEPING UP WITH A MULTI-FACETED LIFESTYLE

Like Divine, RJ, Aron, Risa, and Liz, you, too, can live your life to the fullest, and choose to be who you want to be. Here are some tips from them to help you get on the right track to the multi-faceted lifestyle.

Prioritize. — As Risa shares, "It's all a matter of defining your priorities." And to her, being a mother should always come first. "Every other role comes second to that," says Risa.

Give 100%. — As Liz says, "I make sure I give my all! Achievers don't settle. Mediocrity is not an option. Those who are determined to succeed always go the extra mile and don't waver in their resolve."

Save time. — Divine is proud of her time management skills. "My schedule is organized by 30 minutes and I like military precision in things," Divine shares. "It's not that I have to choose between things because I am able to do everything with proper scheduling," she adds.

Have passion. — "What is important is that you have passion behind what you do," says RJ. Risa says she's motivated and inspired by her passion. "I feel incredibly blessed to enjoy what I do," she says. "I think it is passion that fuels the ability to do all these tasks," adds RJ.

Be inspired. — When you feel like everything is getting out of hand, it is easier to get back on track if you have an inspiration to keep you going. For Aron, his goals inspire him to do all his things. "I am a competitive person so if I set my goals, I will do what I can to get there." For RJ, it is his faith and family. "It inspires me to lift up all my work to Him. And of course to my beloved. What I do is for them."

Keep your body fit and healthy. — A simple morning run, like what Liz does, or a whole Yoga practice can keep you well. A proper diet by eating right and healthy is what Risa lives by. If you have no time to go to the gym, he says to get yourself the proper amounts of vitamins, especially Vitamin C, to keep your body healthy.

Getting all things done is not easy, but if you have the proper mindset, burning passion, and a healthy body, living your multi-faceted life can be easy in 1-2-3.
